
NUS Real Estate 'Nurturing Young Leaders' Lecture Series 2018

A Project from the Heart

Apart from being passionate about creating value-added real estate and architecture, Felix is also very much involved in a personal project outside Singapore which he calls it a project from the heart, giving more than 10 years of his life to designing and building an institutional campus from ground zero in a remote province in Cambodia entirely "Pro Bono Publico".

Using the experience garnered from the campus project, Felix will share the several lessons learnt from the project, on why professionals today need to be more involved in Pro Bono works and what value this brings to the table for both the professionals and the local community alike. This talk will also cover the challenges and sustainability of Pro Bono work; as well as discuss the rewards associated with such work.

Date: 4th October 2018 (Thursday)
Time: 12pm – 1pm
Venue: National University of Singapore, School of Design & Environment,
4 Architecture Drive, S(117566), SDE 3, Level 4, Lecture Room LR425
